

PARTICIPANT COMMENTS – CWRT VIDEOS

It was very useful, but it seemed to focus more so on the videos created with a phone. Very little on those created using cameras, microphones, and lighting for videos created in an indoor environment. But overall, I learned a few things, which is the reason I attend these programs. Great Job! – Mike Hoover, Inland Empire CWRT

In my opinion, it was terrific. easy to understand, from a person who often records videos in some historical sites, giving some recommendations which are cheap (I would say free if You already have a smartphone with you). It should be spread among all CWRTs. – Fernando Bastidas, Venezuela

Great presentation tonight! – James Knights, Pittsburgh

The class as always was full of great information. I am so glad I was able to participate in the class. I am also very glad that they are recorded, and I can find them later. Thank you again. – Cheryl Rice, Olympia CWRT

I thought this was a good basic primer on creating movies on one's cell phone, which I have never done. As I have an older Android phone without an app for movie making, I was happy to learn that there are some available for free on the internet. I see there are many available. I wish the free Android apps were explored to recommend the best available. Nothing is worse than downloading an app, then finding it does not do well for your purposes. A valuable presentation, nonetheless. I look forward to Part II. Perhaps one future part could be devoted to I-Phones and another to Androids, especially older versions. – Dennis Urban, Knoxville CWRT

This was my first time listening and learning about the making of videos. Chris did a thorough and excellent job in his presentation. I felt Chris provided me with the basics that will help me if I attempt to make videos in the future. – Steve Jaren, Bull Run CWRT
